Training courses and events for facilitation professionals

A project supported by universcience in association with its partners

Our area of expertise : face-to-face science engagement

Facilitators decipher knowledge that is considered complex, facilitate science-society debates and involve citizens in collective participatory projects. Therefore, the training and professionalization of professionals from science engagement is essential to give formal expression to know-how, enhance

Our missions

- Support the development of professional skills in the field of knowledge dissemination and production
- Create spaces for dialogue between practices and research
- Document transformations in scientific, technical and industrial culture
- Develop on-the-job self-analysis
- Promote the profession and its values: inclusion, accessibility, participation, critical thinking, and public empowerment

Our approach : combining approaches and skills

Experimentation and Research

The École de la Médiation offers a dynamic program based on the reality in the field and emerging new knowledge. It applies a training/experimentation/research approach :

- identify changes in practices and representations
- prototype, test, and evaluate facilitation actions
- give formal expression to knowledge to better share it

Co-construction

All activities are designed by teams from different organizations with various profiles to vary approaches, skills and experience. The multi-partner project brings together actors from:

- science communication and public engagement with science
- research
- adult education
